

Molotov Is Succeeded By Vishinsky As USSR Minister

By EDDIE GILMORE
Moscow, March 5 (AP) — Andrei Y. Vishinsky replaced Vyacheslav M. Molotov as foreign minister today in a momentous shift of helmsmen in international relations.

Russia's second most important official in dealings with the outside world, Foreign Trade Minister A. I. Mikoyan, also was replaced by his deputy, M. A. Menshikov, after 23 years at the job. Until today Vishinsky also had been Molotov's deputy.

These dramatic changes — the most important in the Soviet Union since Molotov took over the foreign ministry a decade ago from Maxim Litvinoff — were announced by the presidium of the Supreme Soviet in a brief statement which left unanswered a host of questions.

Brief Announcement
Appearing on the back pages of morning newspapers under the headline, "announcements," it said: "The presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. has freed deputy chairman of the Council of Ministers, Comrade V. M. Molotov, from duties as minister of foreign affairs and designated as minister of foreign affairs Comrade A. Y. Vishinsky."

No Hint Of New Jobs
There was no hint as to what new jobs Molotov and Mikoyan might be taking. It said nothing about their being relieved of their duties as deputy chairmen of the Council of Ministers. On the contrary it used those titles in referring to them.

There was no hint as to what significance the changes might portend. Molotov, who will be 59 on March 9, holds the following positions besides being deputy chairman of the Council of Ministers: Member of the all-powerful Politburo; member of the Council of the Union, one of the two houses of the Russian Parliament; deputy to the Supreme Soviet of the Russian Soviet Federal Socialist Republic (R.S.F.S.R.) the largest republic in the Soviet Union; and member of the central committee.

$611 DONATED TO SCOUT FUND

Contributions to the annual Black Walnut Boy Scout district fund drive now total $611.50, Attorney Daniel E. Teeter, finance chairman for the district announced today.

Attorney Teeter added that judging by current results the drive should easily reach its goal of $1,000 by the week-end of March 12, scheduled time for closing of the campaign.

The drive is being held in all sections of the district with the exception of Gettysburg. Gettysburg raised its share of the fund through the community chest drive some time ago. Fairfield has gone over its quota, with $96.50 raised and has completed its part of the solicitation, Teeter said. The Rev. G. S. Stoneback is chairman of the drive in the Fairfield area.

LIBRARY BOARD AWAITING COURT APPROVAL OF BID

Anxiously awaiting favorable action by the court on March 14 on their bid of $9,000 for the old jail property, directors of the Adams County Free Library association deferred at their March meeting Friday evening any action on plans for use and development of the jail property until next month when they hope to have secured title.

In February the board formally voted to buy the property and authorized a loan to make the 20 per cent down payment. Since the library was organized more than three years ago, the board has been looking toward the day when the association could own its own property. It has been renting quarters at 135 Carlisle street since it began book service to the entire county with the use of its bookmobile three years ago.

The monthly report of Miss Anna Farran, librarian, showed the volume of loans at the library last month continued at the high level of more than 12,000 books, slightly exceeding the January figure. More than 10,000 of those loans last month were made through school stations (Please Turn to Page 4)

THREE SERVICES MARK WORLD DAY OF PRAYER HERE

There are four ways of meeting life, but only one of them is acceptable, the Rev. Wallace E. Fisher, of the Gettysburg college faculty, told a large group gathered at the YWCA Friday evening for the closing of the World Day of Prayer observance.

Speaking on the subject, "Youth's Most Pressing Question," the Rev. Mr. Fisher said the most basic problem of youth is that of "what to do with one's life, how to live it, with whom to share it in marriage, in what profession to invest it and by what creed to live it?"

An individual can seek to run away from life, he said, but stated "that is ever unsuccessful for life relentlessly pursues" the person. "One can seek to compromise with life, but life makes no compromises. It is deeply patient but somewhere a man must pay for every compromise." The college history teacher (Please Turn to Page 6)

Here And There News Collected At Random

Two advertisers in The Gettysburg Times recently received nationwide recognition for display advertisements appearing in this newspaper.

The Publishers Idea Exchange, of Des Moines, Iowa, selected the advertisements as being "the best" for that month among all other displays throughout the nation.

The advertisements were prepared by the advertising staff of The Gettysburg Times for Marling's and Bankert's. Both ads were chosen for typography, layout design and presentation and declared to be the best among newspaper displays. They were duplicated in the Publishers Idea Exchange Bulletin and mailed to their subscribers as "top flight" examples of display advertising.

A great majority of newspapers in the country subscribe to this service and selection of the "best displays" is a highly coveted honor.

In previous Bulletins two display advertisements of Lippy's, men's furnishings, were selected (Please Turn to Page 8)

DRIVER KILLED WHEN VEHICLE STRIKES BRIDGE

James F. Nelson 29, Matthias apartments, South Queen street, Littlestown, was killed late Friday afternoon when his automobile struck a bridge abutment over Plum creek in Pennville, at the southwest outskirts of Hanover.

State police of the Gettysburg substation who investigated the accident, said Nelson was driving toward Littlestown and his car failed to negotiate a curve. It struck the bridge wall and bounded over it into the creek, landing on its top.

MUSSELMAN CO. TO BE HOST TO BERRY GROWERS

Raspberry growers of Adams and adjacent counties, their wives, farm managers, and senior class agriculture students from both Biglerville and Gettysburg high schools will be guests of the C. H. Musselman company at the company's annual raspberry growers' banquet to be held in the Biglerville plant cafeteria next Tuesday evening at 6:30 o'clock.

Albert Kennedy Roswell of Pittsburgh, humorist and lecturer who has built up a wide reputation on the convention and banquet circuits, is to be the featured speaker.

Technical advice on berry culture and disease and pest control will be followed by a round table discussion of any problems the growers may wish to dump into the experts' laps. County Agent M. T. Hartman, with John U. Ruef and R. S. Kirby from the Pennsylvania State college extension service will provide the answers.

During and since the war, raspberry culture on a commercial scale has not kept pace with other fruit crops in Adams county; and it is the opinion of Musselman officials that production from a much larger acreage than is now under cultivation could be marketed with profit to the growers.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, March 5 (AP)—The names of a hundred or so Kentucky Derby hopefuls, of which maybe a dozen will be starters, were given out to the public today.

And that recalled the story of the most surprising starter in the history of the race. Back in 1930, the late Pat Joyce had nominated a nag named Dick O'Hara.

He soon learned the horse didn't have a chance and had no intention of running him. But when the entry box was opened on Friday, in came the name of Dick O'Hara, and he started, too.

But when the entry learned that a character in Chicago was running a Derby "pool" which guaranteed 4 to 1 on a ticket if the horse started. The operator, feeling sure Dick O'Hara wouldn't start, had sold a lot of extra tickets on that horse.

... Joyce's effort to protect the suckers was fruitless, for the sure-thing guy took a run-out with the dough he had collected.

SPORTSPOURRI
Reville, George D. Widener's colt which looked very good while finishing third in the Flamingo, is not eligible for the Kentucky Derby.

Seems that Trainer Bert Mulholland doesn't read the papers carefully and overlooked a published notice of the closing of the entries.

Tab Catholic university, a new member of the Intercollegiate Boxing Association, as a "dark glove" to win the team title next week. C. U. is unbeaten in dual meets and has at least two individual standouts.

Cornell's Bob Mealey, a favorite in the heptagonal meet 1,000 yards tonight, received some early coaching from his father, a former sprinter for the New York 13th Regiment Track club.

... The Athletics' Wally Moses should be the next American leaguer to reach a lifetime total of 2,000 hits. He has 46 to go. Only other active A. L. player in that class is Chicago's Luke Appling, who has 2,571.

New York, March 5 (AP)—You half expected to find Dumb Dan Morgan out in Eighth avenue pulling heavy-weight truck drivers off their seats and asking if they'd like to fight.

Instead Dan was in his usual chair at the 20th Century Sporting club muttering softly to anyone who would listen: "If I only had a heavy-weight, I'd claim the title. Who does Joe Louis think he is trying to dictate to the public? ... He can't pick two guys and say they're going to fight for the championship. When Joe resigned that title, he was all through. He's just another promoter now—and he can't talk."

The biggest laugh that ever came out of boxing was when Jefferies retired and picked Tommy Root and Marvin Hart to fight for the championship. ... People just laughed at him; then a little fellow named Tommy Burns came along and licked Hart and all the foreign champions and eventually they began to recognize him.

UP TO DATE
Dan made a very good point. ... When Gene Tunney retired, it was two years before Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey emerged to fight it out. Even then Schmeling received only doubtful recognition because he won on a foul. ... Some young fellow always comes along—Burns or Jack Johnson or Jack Dempsey or Louis—when the situation gets thoroughly confused.

The public, as Morgan said, won't recognize a champion until he has proved his ability. ... In this case, someone will have to lick everyone else in sight or lick Louis. ... And that is where Joe and his International Boxing Club will have the edge in any promotional battle.

There's always the implied possibility that Louis may un-retire for one more fight, even though he's dead serious about his retirement now.

Today's Talk

IT'S THE LAW

Respect for oneself and for the law go hand in hand. The citadel of democracy would fall without laws. There are many laws that some of us may not like, but so long as they are in force they should be respected. Bad laws can always be changed.

I well recall when we had no traffic lights and so accidents were common at intersections and there was a tendency for the driver to be greedy, as though the whole road belonged to him. Now those simple traffic lights are respected, and safety is assured to pedestrians at dangerous spots.

It makes one proud of his city or country where there is a universal respect for the law—no matter what it is. Good citizens, on the whole, look to laws as their protection, and so honor them. This is as it should be. Laws that are good for the majority should be good enough for an individual.

There are an abundance of laws that have become so worn out that they should be repealed. There are too many, anyway. But if we remember always to respect the natural rights of others, we may be very sure that we are violating no law. Laws are to protect justice, and there should be justice for the poor and rich alike. No one should be above the law. There are good reasons for every good law. We would be in a bad way without them. They are for our individual protection as well as for the protection of others.

If good international laws could be made to apply justly among all nations, there would be little fear of war—if such laws were respected sacredly, as they should be. That is the purpose of the United Nations. Its success can be made to bless the entire world. It is the prayer of us all that it may well succeed.

Good laws, left unenforced, create disrespect toward all laws. All law must have behind it the good will of public opinion. You can't enforce law against universal public opinion. That man is strongest who abides by his self-made laws, in conjunction with those of his fellow men. These self-made laws being his code of conduct. In a democracy it's the majority who must enforce its laws.

FUN

Fun follows when the work of day is done;
Not with the rise, but with the set of sun.
Fun is the sweet reward that is returned,
To be enjoyed when it is truly earned.

Fun is the second motive, not the first,
Who thinks it best may live to find it worst.
Who through the years takes pleasure for his guide
Misses the way of peace of mind and pride.

Work is the leader! When the tasks are done
They set us free to rest and turn to fun.
Oh, son of mine, remember and be wise:
Toil is life's purpose. Fun is just the prize.

TWO ARRESTED FOR STEALING YANK SECRETS

Washington, March 5 (AP)—A Russian member of the United Nations staff and a woman employee of the Department of Justice were arrested in New York last night charged with stealing American secrets.

Attorney General Tom Clark, announcing the arrest today, identified them as:

Judith Coplin, 27, formerly of Brooklyn, N. Y., a Justice Department employee since 1943. Her exact job was not given but officials said it was a minor one.

Valentine A. Gubitchev, 32, Immunity Questions
The Justice Department's announcement conflicted with reports from U. N. officials on Gubitchev's exact status. The announcement here called him "a member of the Russian delegation" to the U. N. and third secretary of the U. S. S. R. secretariat office, assigned to the Manhattan office of the U. N. United Nations sources agreed that he is a Russian national but described him as an employee of the U. N. secretariat itself.

In either case a question of immunity from arrest might arise. While the United States has not passed an immunity law to protect the U. N. staff against arrest as diplomats generally are protected, it has authorized a U. N. headquarters in New York and recognized it as an international zone.

There have been outcries in Congress against the possibility of subversives getting into this country through the U. N. gate.

Littlestown

Littlestown.—Intramural basketball scores for the past week in Littlestown Junior Senior High school, as announced by Clayton L. Evans and Miss Margaret Steever, were as follows: Boys' games: The Sophomores defeated the Freshmen by a score of 21 to 11; and 8A defeated 7C by a score of 12 to 9. Girls' games: The Juniors defeated the Seniors by a score of 16 to 11; 8B defeated 7B by a score of 26 to 8; 8A defeated 8C by a score of 18 to 14; and 7C defeated 7B by a score of 30 to 5.

The report of the custodian of the Littlestown Branch of the Adams county free library for the month of February stated that during the month, 52 books were borrowed, of which 36 were adult and 16 junior books. There was one new adult subscriber. Four books were also donated to the branch library by Mrs. Theron Spangler of town.

A reception was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Shrader, East King street, in honor of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Dewey Honeycutt, who were married last Saturday afternoon in the rectory of St. Aloysius Catholic church. A three-tier wedding cake occupied the center of the refreshment table which was decorated with cut flowers. The bridal couple were the recipients of many gifts. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Honeycutt, Miss Lois Ledford, Junior and Donald Ledford, Carroll county, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Shrader and children, Susie, Nadine, Joan and Patrick, Irishstown; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Ooster, son, Donald, Miss Rita Ooster and Bubbles Smith, McSherrytown; Mrs. Jennie Boose, Joseph Shenefelter, Miss Shirley Dodder, Miss Jeannette Redding, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Shrader, sons, Joseph and Francis, and daughter, Mary, and the bride and groom, all of town.

served regularly by the bookmobile which traveled 402 miles in February.

Have Worn Out 1,177 Books
The library's book collection now stands at 12,387 volumes with 14 purchased and 46 donated last month. Since the library began operation more than 1,177 books have had to be withdrawn from circulation because they were "worn out" by heavy use and Miss Farran has pointed out to the directors the importance of constant purchases or gifts of books to keep the library's collection at its present level.

Miss Farran said the rental shelf initiated two months ago is self-sustaining with 31 late books now available there to readers.

Bills totaling $683 were ordered paid and the board adjourned until April 1. Mrs. E. S. Lewars, board president, presided with these directors in attendance: Mrs. Lester O. Johnson, William M. Lott, W. W. Eisenhart, C. A. Chuck and Stanislaus J. Krichen.

Miss Farran acknowledged the gifts of books or magazines in the last month from the following: Miss Reba Adams, O. H. Benson, Laura Booth, J. I. Burgoon, C. A. Chuck, Mrs. Frank Clutz, Rev. Willis Doyle, John Knickerbocker, Mrs. Frank Kramer, Mrs. Lewars, Donald McPherson and Bertha Swisher.

Mr. and Mrs. Mrs. M. C. Jones, Hanover, have returned from a cruise to the Bahamas, Panama and Cuba.

No matter what else can be said for it familiarity with your car breeds content.

Counsel For The Defense

Some of the criticism of today's car may be justified but let's call a halt on condemnation that loses sight of simple facts. One observer recently told an audience that today's car isn't steered, but simply aimed. He objects to the fact that you can't cut the front wheels as quickly as you could in the earlier days but overlooks the further fact that if you could do this there would be the constant risk of upsetting the car. Also you could not park the car as easily. Engineers have geared down the steering wheel to prevent sudden shifts in direction, to ease parking and to provide for the very fine steering needed when going abreast of fast-moving cars in close traffic.

There is a lot of loose talk about modern engines being hard to tear apart. Well, so is your precision watch. Just remember we have made a lot of progress since the days when the head had to come off every 2,000 miles.

Adding A Brake Test

That little compensating vent of the brake master cylinder can be a bad actor. One of its tricks is to prevent fluid from passing back into the reservoir when the brake lines heat up and fluid expands. When this happens the brakes apply themselves. But here's how to tell whether the port is on the job:
Release the brake pedal and remove the filler plug of the master cylinder's reservoir. Insert a piece of thin, straight wire and see if you can easily pass it through the vent into the master cylinder. If not, either the piston doesn't travel back far enough or the vent is clogged.

Would You Believe It?

Way back in 1909 the figure boys tell us that it required 175 weeks of work to equal the price of a car whereas last year 27½ weeks of factory wages did it. . . . There are some 250 drive-in banks in the United States where you can go right up to the teller's window in your own car. . . . It's all very well to take pride in the make of car you drive but remember that most of the most famous cars have already gone into oblivion. . . . A rear-motor car with front-end drive is one of the manufacturing proposals for the near future.

Mechanic Joe Speaking

"Whenever anything seems to be abnormal about your car it is a good idea to note whether you may be using it in an abnormal way. I had this brought home to me the other day when checking excessive front tire wear on a new car. Both shoulders of the treads of both front tires were worn, and that most certainly indicated underinflation. Yet there was no such wear on the rear tires which the owner had been carrying at the same pressure.

"I found the answer in the fact that he did not carry passengers in his car and kept the luggage compartment empty. There was more weight on the front end than on the rear especially when making quick stops."

Motorism Meets Problem

Once again we are finding that it never pays to sell the automobile industry short. Things have looked rather discouraging since car fenders and bodies have been molded into extensive and especially vulnerable units. We've been told that a slight brush with another car means a big repair bill. Dark pictures have been drawn showing body men practically taking the car apart to press out a slight dent in a door or fender. But few have stopped to consider the silver lining. Motorism always comes up with the answer. This time it is the new system of quick and effective repairing of new designs. It is done with materials that stretch over the damaged areas. Joe reaches for the spray gun and your job is as good as new.

Slippery Curves Ahead

Add to your list of winter pointers the idea of keeping as near the right hand shoulder of the road as you can when going into a right hand curve, and more toward the center of the road when swinging into a left turn. In this way you'll have more room in which to maneuver if the car starts to slide.

And bear in mind that the reason you will find icy conditions more hazardous on curves than on the straightaway is not merely the increased risk of rear-end sliding around, but the danger of a steering skid which follows when the front tires won't get traction.

For Future Reference

Many a motorist who is driving a recently acquired used car may be badly puzzled as to why the brakes have developed the habit of fading. He could avoid a lot of trouble and expense by skipping over the possibility of poor lining, fluid loss and incorrect brake shoe adjustment, going straight to the heart of the thing which he will discover to be too thin brake drums. How did the drums get that way? That's easy and logical, too. The previous owner may have been a bit rough with the brakes, causing warped drums. When this happens drums are cut down to true them up. So far so good. But if the drums were a bit light to start with they will then be too thin for normal braking. They just overhear when used on a down-grade, expanding away from the shoes and causing that distressing "fade."

For Safety's Sake

Do you trail to the right or to the left of the car's ahead?

Or haven't you ever stopped to notice how you handle this? Perhaps you are one of many who trail in a straight line with the car and feel that this gives the people behind a better opportunity to see what's ahead. Anyway it is risky to trail to the right for the reason that you do not get a normal view of the driver ahead and certainly cannot catch his hand signaling. Normally the safer course seems to be to follow so as to see what is going on at the driver's side of the car ahead.

Flat Spot Normal

Some of us are so hot on the trail of car trouble we go out of our way to suspect perfectly normal conditions as evidencing need for attention. I was reminded of this when

S. N. L. replaced the ball valve of the oil pressure control because he noted it was flat on one side. He did not know that the flat spot was intended to permit the valve to allow some oil to flow even when pressure was at a minimum.

It's a Motor Question

Q. My new car is equipped with super tires. Do these effect the speedometer reading? H. McB.

A. No. There would be a 3 per cent variation if you were to install these tires on an older car.

Q. Should I feed gas when taking the car into a curve over an icy road? L. C. S.

A. Yes, slow down before entering the curve, then feed a little gas as you go around it.

Q. What would cause my car to tire so hard? Still using the same tires, and still carry the same pressure. I have replaced all four shock absorbers. N. N. K.

A. Check the shackles on this job. They are not free enough.

Q. There's a marked bumping noise in my car, like a tire with a blowout patch. But balancing the tires hasn't helped. K. K. R.

A. Your car may have a loose body bolt. Or the steering post may be loose. Check the battery holder, too.

Q. One of my headlights is quite dim in spite of using a relay, or booster. The bulb itself seems to be all right and works normally in the other light socket. Should I switch to sealed beam lights with special adaptors? Wm. L. Jr.

A. Some of the switchovers have not been too successful. Your trouble probably is due to a poor contact at the lamp socket. Look for corrosion here.

Q. For some time I have been having trouble with burned valves. My work calls for traveling considerable mileage and at top legal speed, so valving must be in good shape. I have rechecked tappet clearances several times. I am also sure these is no stickage of the valve stems. Yet every so often a valve burns out. This happens even to the new ones. Can you help?

G. W. R.
A. I am going to suggest something which I find many experienced motorists are inclined to overlook. To me your trouble looks like a case of very weak valve springs. I would replace the whole lot of them next time you find it necessary to replace a valve.

Q. What would cause a main bearing to burn out following a motor job. I used plenty of break-in oil and was very careful not to drive fast. It is rather discouraging. T. Mack.

A. There are several possibilities here but my guess is that the particular bearing was fitted with too little clearance. If you write me again on this, please let me know the make and year of car you drive. This is always necessary where specific service advice is needed.

AMERICAN REDS GIVE ALLEGIANCE FIRST TO RUSSIA

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

The reaffirmed adherence of American Communist leaders to the Moscow axis doesn't alter, but merely confirms, the party's attitude towards the U. S. government. They owe allegiance first to Russia.

There's really only one unusual thing about the statement issued on behalf of William Z. Foster, national committee chairman, and Eugene Dennis, general secretary. This is that both already are under federal charges of conspiracy to advocate forcible overthrow of the U. S. government.

Their declaration therefore shows daring and vast determination. Here's some typical interpretive comment from Washington:

Senate Minority Leader Wherry (R-Neb.): "Communist allegiance has been to the Communist party, whether in war or peace."

Senator Pepper (D-Fla.): "If any citizen is proved to have given wartime aid and comfort to the enemy, he is guilty of treason under our Constitution and should be dealt with accordingly."

Ignores Traitors
Senator Russell (D-Ga.) "Communism and patriotism always have been incompatible."

President Truman, when asked at a news conference for comment on the statement by the Communist leaders, replied:

"I have no comment to make on such a statement by traitors."

The pronouncement by Foster and Dennis lines them up with the leaders of several European Communist parties who clearly have been acting in concert. Similar statements have been made by Maurice Thorez, secretary general of the French Communist party; Palmiro Togliatti, Italian Red leader; Harry Pollitt, general secretary of the British Communist party; and the German and Austrian Communist parties.

Obviously should Russia, mother of Communism, find herself at war, the Communists of all countries would be expected immediately to adopt the attitude best suited to serve Moscow's interests.

Counter-Attack

What started this avalanche of pledges to Moscow? There are various guesses. One is that it is calculated to counter the proposed North Atlantic Alliance among the Western nations. In any event it's propaganda which clearly could be directed to two ends:

1. To strike fear in the chancelleries of the Western world.

2. To put the Communist parties of all countries on their toes—to prepare for contingencies.

What contingencies? Well, Moscow keeps saying the Western powers, led by America, are preparing to make war. Maybe the Russians believe that, though I doubt it.

Number of Jobless Jumps In February

Washington, March 5 (AP)—The number of jobless Americans shot up another 550,000 in February to 3,200,000, the highest unemployment since the war.

The census bureau, reporting the figure today, attributed the rise partly to bad weather in some parts of the country and partly to "non-seasonal layoffs" in industry.

The new increase in unemployment, on top of a 700,000 rise in January, makes the total increase in joblessness 1,250,000 for the first two months of 1949.

Not since March, 1942, had so many Americans who wanted jobs failed to find them. In that early part of the war, unemployment totaled 3,580,000.

NICOTINE AS DUST OR SPRAY

In gardening advice for combating sap-sucking pests, what is meant by "nicotine"? How is this insecticide applied as a spray? As a dust? Will nicotine control other than sap-sucking insects? These are vital questions which every flower, fruit and vegetable grower should be able to answer fully and clearly before the growing season arrives.

Nicotine, as employed as an insecticide is a byproduct of tobacco manufacture. It is bought in liquid form, usually called nicotine sulphate. Black Leaf 40 is the chief form used, the "40" referring to the active nicotine content of the mixture.

Nicotine sulphate causes death to insects by shutting off available air—by asphyxiation. It is never recommended for use as a stomach poison, such as lead arsenate, Paris green, calcium arsenate and other insecticides which cause death when taken into the insect's digestive tract on the food it eats. Herein is cleared up the reason why nicotine sulphate is usually recommended for combating aphids (plant lice) and other sap-sucking pests. These insects do not gnaw their food. In other words, they do not eat foliage. Therefore they are immune to stomach poisons and must be combated with an insecticide that causes death by contact (asphyxiation) instead of being taken into the digestive tract on its food.

And these simple facts automatically suggest methods of application, too. Here two important principles are stressed. To kill leaf-eating (gnawing) insects, spread the poison on their food—the leaves. To kill a sap-sucking pest, spread the poison on the insect (by direct contact). If these two simple facts are remembered, gardeners will gain a great advantage in their war on insect enemies.

In using nicotine as a contact insecticide it may be applied either as a spray or a dust. If used as a spray, it is usually mixed in soapy water in order to coat the oily bodies of aphids more effectively. And of course, in combating such sap-suckers as mealybugs, with their up-hoisted bodies, a spreader (soap) is absolutely necessary to cause the insecticide to adhere to their bodies long enough to cause death. In most roles where Black Leaf 40 is applied as spray, it is mixed at the rate of 1 to 1½ teaspoonsful to a gallon of water in which a 1-inch cube of ordinary laundry soap or two table-spoonfuls of soap flakes has been dissolved.

Nicotine in dust form must be applied when the air is still or wind will blow the asphyxiating fumes of the nicotine away before they kill the sap-suckers. This fact leads to the advice to apply nicotine dust when the air is still and the temperature is above 70 degrees. The latter factor is explained by the principle that nicotine fumes are most lethal in high temperatures. This is not so important, of course, when nicotine is applied in spray form.

Dust may be purchased in commercial form under various trade names or it may be prepared easily at home by a simple formula which the editor will gladly furnish interested readers free on request. Of course, if there are any doubtful phases in these matters or unanswered questions brought over from previous years, gardeners should write for needed information at once. Please enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope or a 3-cent stamp when writing the editor.

HYDRANGEA TASKS IN MARCH
Success with hardy hydrangeas depends largely on what is done during the first two or three weeks in March. Pruning of established plants, dividing and replanting crowded clumps, setting out new plants, and feeding all hydrangeas are among the tasks of early March. Therefore, a few easy-to-understand suggestions are offered for all who grow or would like to grow this popular flowering shrub.

First, of course, is the necessity for repeating advice on choosing

species and varieties for outdoor roles. Most hydrangeas purchased as potted specimens in or near full bloom at Christmas and Easter seasons belong to the so-called "florist" or "greenhouse" groups, usually varieties of Japanese or Hortensia species. These are not satisfactory for outdoor growing, although they may occasionally be kept in large pots and used as porch plants. To grow outdoor hydrangeas successfully, buy one of the varieties of the Paniclea species. The popular Pee-Gee hydrangea belongs to this group—Paniclea Grandiflorum, P and G being the initials.

Plant hydrangeas as early in March as soil can be prepared. Spade under deeply some well rotted manure as far in advance of planting time as possible. Avoid insoluble masses of fresh manure near newly planted roots. Some 4-12-4 or 6-8-5 commercial fertilizer worked uniformly through the soil will prove beneficial. But place more emphasis on naturally fertile and deeply yellow loam, with plenty of moisture-holding organic matter in it, than on commercial fertilizers to correct soil defects after planting. Prune back newly set-out plants quite severely. Divide and replant old crowding clumps at the same time.

Established hydrangeas should be pruned before growth starts in March. Failure to prune is one of the most glaring mistakes possible in handling outdoor hydrangeas. And proportionately the failure to prune enough is one of the causes of poor crops of blooms. To have fewer but larger flowers, prune last year's woods back to two or three pairs of buds. Remove all dead, diseased, injured or crowding woods.

Hydrangeas like an abundance of moisture and available plant foods for their long growing season and especially to carry them vigorously through midsummer into their full glory of foliage and flower beauties in late summer. If soil is prepared, as suggested above, most of the moisture requirements will be provided, except during rainless periods when the rooting soil should be soaked to a depth of 6 to 8 inches once a week. But every grower should work some well rotted and pulverized manure into the surrounding soil in early March, adding a few handfuls of complete fertilizer.

The desire for blue hydrangeas often becomes an unreasonable obsession. Of course, the blue types are beautiful, but so would be a blue viburnum or a yellow lilac. The more important factor in growing hydrangeas is to grow large, beautiful flowers of the white and pink sorts, along with verdant, attractive ### foliage for a background. There are now blue varieties offered by most nurseries. Addition of some powdered alum in the soil will increase somewhat the blue coloring of naturally blue types. The aim for blue flowers is not to be condemned, but it should not in any case overshadow the greater truth that beauty in this shrub is attainable entirely apart from flower color.

POSSIBILITIES WITH FLOWERS

Out door geraniums, with a border of contrasting colors, make an excellent decoration for formal driveways and walks. In fact, this attractive combination may be employed in numerous ways in the home grounds.

Few other annuals excel portulacas for carpeting exposed areas where hot sunshine discourages many ornamentals. There are both single and double sorts available in white, yellow, red, orange and many intermediate shades. They bloom profusely all summer.

If petunia seed is sown in a sunny window box any time from early February until the first of March, plants will prove welcome for porch and window displays and later for use in outdoor beds and borders. The small plants should be shifted to individual pots or bands in a cold-frame to prevent spindly development before weather permits final transplanting.

Sunflowers serve a dual role in gardens. They provide a serviceable dividing border or make a good screen along fences. And the tasty seed is relished by birds over winter. Every gardener should grow this annual for its seed crop if not for its showy flowers and bulky screening value. Poultry like the protein-rich seed, too.

Sweet peas often fail to attain their maximum vigor and beauty because the seed is not inoculated. Good drainage, a deep loam, early March planting, and inoculation are four important steps in growing this desirable annual. Every year finds more attractive types and colors added to sweet peas.

For a beautiful but inexpensive color arrangement, plant a row of blue salvia behind a bed of pink or white petunias. Salvia is commonly thought of in terms of Scarlet Sage, but the blue variety fits in more harmoniously in numerous plans.

There are several fancy-leaved caladiums suitable for outdoor roles. Bulbs should be started under glass in individual pots in early spring and the plants moved to their growing place after the soil is warm and all frost dangers are past. This plant likes a deeply mellow, rich, moist loam. It deserves wider use. Bulbs must be taken up and stored over winter.

Borage is a so-called herb, listed in garden catalogues as a desirable member in the herb group. The young leaves are used widely in salads, the tender flower spikes in iced tea and other cool drinks. But in addition to these values, borage makes a good border ornamental. Its bluish to purple flowers attract bees more consistently than any other garden plant. The hairy foliage possesses considerable ornamental worth.

If kale had never been grown for edible plant it would probably have played an important role among low annual border ornamentals. Some courageous grower might cheer the editor's heart by trying it once.

Hybrid developments have added charm to columbines. This perennial may be grown from seed or started from nursery plants set out after the soil is warm.

Beginners with delphiniums should start with nursery plants rather than embark on the often-troublesome course of growing plants from seed. A rich, well drained background site can be used to few better purposes than a trial of this stately and beautiful perennial.

Columbus, Ohio, March 5 (AP)—Police estimated today the newest version of the old chain letter game had cost Columbus residents a million dollars in the last two weeks. The vice squad sought yesterday to curtail "club" activities, termed a "racket" by Detective Lieutenant B. P. Smith.

He said there are about 100 "clubs" to which thousands of Columbus residents have donated one dollar each, hoping to receive more than $2,000 in return. The "Pyramid clubs" are conducted in private homes and nothing is sent through the mails, the chief added.

Harrisburg, March 5 (AP)—Governor James H. Duff said Fri. he expects his $443,000,000 tax program to be approved by the General Assembly. The Governor told reporters at a news conference that "I have not changed my opinion one iota," regarding the House-approved tax bills now pending in the Senate.

Nanking, March 5 (AP)—The legislative Yuan convened Friday for its first working meeting of this session in an atmosphere distinctly hostile to Premier Sun Fo.

Twelve members immediately demanded that the Premier comply with the seven decrees on protection of constitutional rights promulgated by Acting President Li Tsung-Jen. They attacked Sun's government for failure to implement these measures.

VFW Auxiliary Nominates

There was a nomination of officers for the coming year at the monthly meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Mason and Dixon Memorial Post No. 6954, Veterans of Foreign Wars, held in the post home on Thursday evening. The following are the nominees: President, Louise Sentz; senior vice president, Helen Wisotzkey and Arlene Blocher; junior vice president, Ottilie Weaver; chaplain, Evelyn Staveland, Madeline Bloom and Ruth Sentz; guard, Anna Harner; conductress, Mabel Newman; treasurer, Irene Redding; and trustee for three years, Mary Jane Snyder. Nominations will remain open until a special meeting on Thursday, March 17, when elections will be held. Installation of officers will be conducted at the next regular meeting on Thursday, April 7.

The meeting was in charge of the president, Louise Sentz, with the secretary's report given by Elva Weaver and the treasurer's report by Miss Maiva Dutters. There were four applications for membership: Mrs. Doris King, Mrs. Annabelle Ohler, Mrs. Beatrice Mehning and Mrs. Treva Snyder. These, together with Mrs. Jacqueline Noble, Mrs. Betty Ebaugh, Mrs. Betty Baumgardner, and Mrs. Charlotte Rose, who had been previously elected, were initiated.

Plans were advanced for the 21st district meeting to be held in Littlestown on Sunday, March 27. A committee consisting of Madeline Bloom, Ruth Sentz, Arlene Blocher, Ethel Steick, Ottilie Weaver, Irene Redding, Mabel Newman and Mary Jane Snyder was appointed to meet with a similar committee from the post to complete arrangement for the district meeting. Arrangements have been made to have the auxiliary meeting in St. Aloysius Parish hall; the post meeting in the P.O.S. of A. hall and refreshments at the post home, West King street.

Vote Red Cross $10

Arlene Blocher and Elva Weaver were appointed a committee to purchase a guess package for the future meetings of the auxiliary. Cards of thanks were read from Rhea McCloskey and Ellen P. Swartz, York, and Mrs. Grace Rose of the auxiliary.

The following contributions were voted: $10 for the Red Cross; $10 for the Scotland school commencement activities; $5 to the National Home hospital and kitchen fund, Eaton Rapids, Mich. A contribution was also given toward defraying the expenses of the National president, who is visiting Pennsylvania this month. Announcement was made that there will be a dance May 20 at the Coatesville hospital. Local auxiliary members who wish to attend are advised to notify the local president, Elva Weaver contributed the guess package of the evening which was received by Mrs. Anna Blocher.

Helen Jacobs, Mabel Newman and Elva Weaver, who had previously been appointed a committee to select new auxiliary and new American flags, reported that they had secured the flags. The auxiliary voted to purchase these flags. Arlene Blocher was appointed by the president to serve as poppy chairman. Helen Wisotzkey reported on the merchandise club. She also advised the members that a new club will start on April 1 and the deadline to join the same will be April 7. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting to the 40 members present.

Chapter 20 Rivers found himself believing Don Fernando who seated himself on the edge of a table.

"But out of the bad there is some good. My judgement has been proven, that you are well able to handle the part, as though you were myself. Together we are an unbeatable team. Which is well, for there is bigger work ahead. But now, I am much interested to hear what befell at the Montforts."

Rivers told him. Don Fernando nodded approvingly.

"And so Irene and Diklon like each other? Well, it is not surprising. And have I not done you an excellent turn, and the same for Donna Dolores? I assure you that I tried to act for the best. Long ago, in Spain, when we were but children, it was understood, our wedding, at some future date. A matter on which we had nothing to say. I had supposed that it was long forgotten. Imagine my consternation to find that she had journeyed from Spain, expecting to marry me? What was I to do?"

"But did it ever occur to you that you might marry her?"

"But how? With the fair Maria thinking that she had first claim on me? I am, I hope, not wholly a villain. And without love—" he shrugged, changed the subject.

"But I must be returning to my own ship. And so to business. At the edge of the river, you see a solid line of trees, but one breaks the skyline like a giant? There is a waterway there, which winds back inland, the land so wooded on either side that, if a ship follows the course, no mast or sail shows. Usually there is enough of a breeze to move a ship along."

"For such a ship as the Lovely Maria there is little room to spare. Not far back it widens to a lake, then narrows again. Back in there, as far as a ship may go, is stored much produce. It is not too far from New Orleans, and there is also a road winding from the great lands to the north and east. They have enough cargo to load both ships!"

Rivers was beginning to catch his excitement.

"My plans, laid a year ago, are working out," Don Fernando went on. "Long I sighed over it. To get the goods was easy—but to get them past the French watchdogs, even with the help of the Montforts, which once I thought I would have—that would not be simple. Which was why I had to have time—time to get ships such as the Gay Countess and the Lovely Maria! And now I have them."

"And you intend to fill them and run past the city at night?"

"Yes. A bold stroke. I have laid the groundwork to create a diversion for the men of Napoleon. Enough to occupy them. All goes well now—thanks to you. Had I been compelled to halt at the Montforts—to run a certain risk there, as was inevitable. And worse, to have the French know that I was in town—" he shrugged.

"As he told things, it sounded convincing. Though there were discrepancies."

"The only way I could get the Gay Countess past the batteries was by a ruse, and you furnished it," Don Fernando added. "But how did you manage with the Lovely Maria?"

He nodded with approval as Rivers explained.

"Worthy of a Gonzales! Now, all goes well. Save that, seeing you coming, I saw where there could be a hitch. There must not be two Don Fernandos for these backwoodsmen to see! They would be suspicious and refuse to deal with us."

"Do you still intend to cheat them?" Rivers asked bluntly.

Don Fernando sighed.

"Was it not a beautiful dream?" he asked wistfully. "All of this booty, rotting, going to waste, here for the taking! Such a scheme! But I was forced to abandon it. These backwoodsmen are too suspicious, too shrewd. Besides, it is not necessary. They are content to sell cheaply—particularly to anyone shrewd enough to fool the French, whom they hate!"

He shook his head.

"But there is work for both of us. Beyond where the produce is stored, a two-day journey, is a small settlement—Great Neck, they call it. An American, John Sweeney, lives there. A man of much influence. If he agrees to sell, his neighbors will do the same. If he refuses, so will they. I have others to see. If you would take a wagon and make the journey, and see him? Donna Dolores and Irene could go with you, if you liked. Then we return, load the ships—and run to the sea!"

Such a trip would be in the nature of a vacation, and it appealed to him. Don Fernando was adjusting the beard again.

"It is up to you, of course. Bring the Lovely Maria in, alongside the Gay Countess. Make sure that no one sees you start. I go one way, you another, and if ever they compare notes, by then the business will be settled and we long gone. Only I will not have such company on my journey. You are the lucky one!"

London, March 5 (AP)—Britain next year will spend her biggest peacetime defense budget except the years before she had demobilized after World War II. The House of Commons approved defense estimates of 759,860,000 pounds ($3,039,440,000) last night by a vote of 227 to 3. This was after Defense Minister A. V. Alexander had declared the huge expenditure was necessary "so long as Russia maintains her veto on peace and security."

used examples from pre-World War II history to show how compromises on the part of governments as well as individuals lead to eventual "payment" in greater difficulties and problems.

"The Dedicated Life" A third way to meet life, he pointed out, "is to stand manfully up to it and deal life blow for blow." Such a method is "noble," he said, "but it carries the seeds of tragedy. A man alone against the world and life is 'defeated again and again,' he added.

The only "acceptable way to live" is to "dedicate life to God as we know Him in Jesus Christ," the local preacher held, stating "That man is rich, constructive and deeply satisfied who places his life in God's capable hands. The only effective thing thing to do with life is to live in Christ."

About 200 attended the opening service of the World Day of Prayer program, held Friday afternoon at St. James Lutheran church. All of the services were on the general theme: "The Lord Is Thy Keeper."

Arranged By Church Women The services were arranged by the Gettysburg Council of Church Women.

Mrs. Howard S. Fox, president of the local council, served as leader for the first portion of the adult service at St. James at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Milton R. Remmel was chairman of the program. A 50-voice Gettysburg high school chorus sang two numbers, "Lord, I Want to Be a Christian" and "The Spirit of God." Richard B. Shade presented organ numbers. During the service a "broadcast" was presented in which various participants outlined the work carried on by the donations given at World Day of Prayer services. Missionary work, work among negroes and migrant workers are among the projects carried on by the funds. The Rev. Dr. Ralph R. Gresh and E. Jerome Alexis, student assistant pastor of St. James church were the "announcers" for the "broadcast." Those who took various parts and explained the work done under the fund included Charles W. Reider, Mrs. Charles C. Culp, Mrs. Raymond Weder, Mrs. Ralph R. Gresh, Mrs. A. A. Maust and Mrs. Luther McDonnell. The offering at the service was lifted by Mrs. R. P. Snyder, Mrs. Lila Craig, Mrs. Edgar A. Crouse and Mrs. J. Herbert Hamme.

At 4 o'clock Friday afternoon a service for children was held at St. James church during which a film was shown and a special anthem was sung by the Junior choir of Christ Lutheran church. Mrs. Fox, Mrs. Richard C. Lighter, Miss Maebelle Hereter and Mrs. E. Donald Scott were in charge of the children's service.

Vocal solos were sung at the Friday evening service at the YWCA by Miss Dorothy Lowman and Mrs. James Shroot. Miss Verna Kitzmiller and Miss Alice Snyder were co-chairmen of arrangements for the service.

fight for woman suffrage. Mrs. Reuning described Mary-Stevenson Cassat as one of the 10 greatest American painters and said that next to Whistler she was the greatest American etcher. She next described Kate Douglas Wiggin, author of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" and founder of the first free kindergarten in the west.

The last woman mentioned by Mrs. Reuning was Mary Lander, who walked to Gettysburg and back from Hanover to hear Lincoln dedicate the National cemetery. In her report of the event, written for her father's newspaper, was one of the few scribes of that day to predict immortality for the Gettysburg Address.

There were two piano solos by Mrs. Richard B. Shade, "Gavotte" by Gluck and "Waltz in A Flat" by Chopin. Twenty-five members attended.

Highlights On Making Income Tax Returns

NO. 10—DEDUCTIONS
(Editor's Note: This is the 10th of 12 stories on who has to do what about his 1948 income tax return, for the deadline is March 15.)

By JAMES MARLOW
Washington, March 5 (AP)—Watch your deductions. They may save you money in filing your 1948 income tax return.

You can deduct many expenses from your income before what's left is taxable. Some income, tax-exempt, doesn't have to be reported at all.

Remember: The law on deductions is a bit different from the last time you filed a return. Congress made changes in it during 1948.

Because deductions are so important, this story, and the 11th in a 12-story series, will deal with them. Some of the points on deductions, mentioned in other stories in this series, will be rounded up and repeated today.

Type of Form Important

The size of your deductions will decide for you the kind of income tax return to use.

There's no problem if your income was less than $5,000 and your deductions were not more than 10 per cent of your income. You'd use form 1040A or the 1940 short-form or even mention your deductions.

When you use either of those two forms you get, automatically and without asking, a deduction of 10 per cent. It's already allowed for in the tax table used with both forms to figure out a person's tax.

Change In Law

If your income was less than $5,000 but your deductions were more than 10 per cent, don't use form 1040A or the 1940 short-form. You'll lose money. Use the 1040 long-form.

On that form, then, if your income was less than $5,000 but your deductions were more than 10 per cent, you'll have to itemize them but you can claim them.

If your income was $5,000 or more, the size of your deductions have nothing to do with the kind of form you use. You have no choice. You must use the 1040 long-form.

But—this is where the changes in the law begin to show. Congress laid down different rules on deductions for taxpayers with $5,000 or more income who are single and for those who are married.

More Examples

A single taxpayer in this group is allowed a standard, automatic deduction of 10 per cent of his income up to a limit of $1,000 in deductions. He just takes that 10 per cent. He doesn't have to itemize anything unless his deductions exceed 10 per cent. Example:

Adams' income was $5,500. He takes, without itemizing, a standard 10 per cent deduction, of $550. Jones' income was $10,000. He takes the limit 10 per cent deduction allowed, or $1,000. Smith's income was over $10,000—say $10,500 or $30,000—but he can claim without itemizing only $1,000.

Ways of Filing

It's different with a married couple whose income is $5,000 or more. If they file a joint return, even though the wife had no income, they get a standard deduction—just like the unmarried man—of 10 per cent up to a limit of $1,000, without itemizing.

But—if one of them files separately, or both file separately, there's a flat limit of only $500 in deductions on the return filed. Example: Jones had $8,000 income, his wife had none. They file jointly. They get a standard 10 per cent deduction of $800, without itemizing.

But take the same Jones, with the same $8,000, and the same wife who had no income. He alone files a return. His wife fails to file jointly with him.

Evans Things Up

Then his standard deduction is only $500. The couple has lost money. If deductions were actually more than $5,000, he'd have to itemize them all to prove them.

This may seem unfair to married couples, giving single people a break over them. Congress did it that way to even things up a bit: Under the new law married couples, filing jointly, get a break un-married taxpayers don't get. For, by filing jointly, married couples can "split" their income to get a lower tax, as if each were claiming half the total income.

(Monday: Deductions you can take, and non-taxable income.)

Molotov Is

Always A "Stalin Man"

Mikoyan also held these other jobs: Member of the Politburo, member of the central committee of the Communist party, member of the Council of Nationalities, one of the two houses of the Supreme Soviet, and a member of the Supreme Soviet of the R.S.F.S.R.

Molotov, a stalwart in the Communist party from its earliest days and an insider almost from the first, always has been known as a "Stalin man." He was premier from 1930 to 1931 when Stalin took over the post himself in the war emergency.

Molotov took over the foreign ministry from Litvinoff on May 3, 1939, just before the outbreak of the war. He handled Russia's diplomacy through the difficult years before Russia was invaded by Germany in 1941, during the war and through the post-war years. Throughout, Vishinsky, who is 65, was his right-hand man.

Known As Friendly Host

Mikoyan became commissar of foreign trade in 1926 and as such became one of Russia's best known officials abroad. He is 53 and his successor, Menshikov, is slightly younger. Only three days ago Mikoyan was on hand as the official representative to greet a north Korean government delegation which arrived for discussions in Moscow.

He had traveled to the United States, and former U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman had him as a guest at his Moscow residence several times. At his many official receptions he was one of the most friendly of hosts. At numerous Kremlin functions he sat next to Americans or Britons.

Menshikov, about whom less is known, was appointed deputy minister of foreign trade in September last year.
